Irene Sets Sights on East Coast

Evacuations begin in N.C. as hurricane turns into Category 3

Hatteras, N.C.

Tourists began evacuating from a tiny barrier island off North Carolina on Wednesday as Hurricane Irene strengthened to a major Category 3 storm over the Bahamas with the East Coast in its sights.

So far, things were going smoothly, said Tommy Hutcherson, owner of the Ocracoke Variety Store on Ocracoke Island. Cars had lined up at gas pumps to top off before leaving ahead of Irene, which had winds near 120 mph as of Wednesday afternoon. Irene is expected to get stronger over warm ocean waters and could become a Category 4 storm with winds of at least 131 mph by Thursday.

The evacuation was a test of whether people in the crosshairs of the first major hurricane along the East Coast in years would heed orders to get out of the way. As Irene churned in the Caribbean, tourists scurried from hotels in the Bahamian capital of Nassau to catch flights off the island. Officials as far north as Rhode Island and Massachusetts in the U.S. also were getting ready for Irene.

Preparing for Irene

Federal officials have warned

Irene could cause flooding, power outages or worse all along the East Coast as far north as Maine, even if it stays offshore. The projected path has gradually shifted to the east, and Irene could make landfall anywhere from South Carolina to Massachusetts over the weekend. (AP)

"Good Morning America," Craig Fugate, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, said people as far north as New England should be ready for the storm. When asked about concerns preparing the Northeast for a hurricane, which is uncommon in that part of the country, Fugate cited Tuesday's earthquake that rattled the East Coast. "It's a reminder that we don't always get to pick the next disaster," Fugate said. (AP)

Steve Jobs Resigns as Apple CEO

San Francisco

Steve Jobs, the mind behind the iPhone, iPad and other devices that turned Apple Inc. into one of the world's most powerful companies, resigned as the company's CEO Wednesday, saying he can no longer handle the job.

The move appears to be the result of an unspecified medical condition for which he took an indefinite leave from his post in January. Apple's chief operating officer, Tim Cook, has been named CEO.

In a letter addressed to Apple's board and the "Apple community," Jobs said he "always said if there ever came a day when I could no longer meet my duties and expectations as Apple's CEO, I would be the first to let you know. Unfortunately, that day has come."

Apple said Jobs was elected board chairman and Cook is becoming a member of its board.

The January leave was Jobs' third medical leave over several years. He had previously survived pancreatic cancer and received a liver transplant. (AP)

Dengue Fever's Breakthrough

Mosquitoes given bacteria don't spread the virus, study says

New York

Scientists have made a promising advance for controlling dengue fever, a tropical disease spread by mosquito bites. They've rapidly replaced mosquitoes in the wild with skeeters that don't spread the dengue virus.

In the Thursday edition of the journal Nature, Australian scientists show that Aedes aegypti mosquitoes, the chief carriers of the dengue virus, resist spreading that virus if they are infected

Dengue's Threat

More than 50 million people a year get the dengue virus from being bitten by infected mosquitoes in tropical and subtropical areas. It can cause debilitating high fever, severe headaches, pain in the muscles and joints, and can lead to a potentially fatal complication. There's no vaccine or specific treatment. (AP) ed with a particular kind of bacteria. Then they tested whether these resistant mosquitoes could displace their ordinary cousins in the wild, thus reducing the number of dengue-spreading mosquitoes.

The resistant mosquitoes have an advantage in reproduction. Resistant females can mate with either resistant or ordinary mosquitoes, and all their offspring will be resistant. But when ordinary females mate with a resistant male, none of the offspring survive.

The result is a "groundbreaking first step," Jason Rasgon of the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health in Baltimore wrote in a commentary accompanying the paper. MALCOLM RITTER (AP)

Probe Lifts NYPD's Veil

Sources: CIA helping the police department target ethnic groups

New York

Since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, the New York Police Department has become one of the nation's most aggressive domestic intelligence agencies, targeting ethnic communities in ways that would run afoul of civil liberties rules if practiced by the federal government, an Associated Press investigation has found.

The operations have benefited from unprecedented help from the CIA, a partnership that has blurred the line between foreign and domestic spying.

The department has dispatched undercover officers, known as "rakers," into minority neighborhoods as part of a human mapping pro-

Finding the Sources

The investigation into the New York Police Department is based on documents and interviews with more than 40 current and former New York Police Department and federal officials. Though most said the tactics were appropriate and made the city safer, many insisted on anonymity, because they were not authorized to speak with reporters about security matters. (AP) gram, according to officials directly involved in the program. They've monitored daily life in bookstores, bars, cafes and nightclubs. Police have also used informants, known as "mosque crawlers," to monitor sermons, even when there's no evidence of wrongdoing.

Neither the city council, which finances the department, nor the federal government, which has given NYPD more than $1.6 billion since 9/11, is told exactly what's going on. The NYPD denied that it trolls ethnic neighborhoods and said it only follows leads. Police operations have disrupted terrorist plots and put several would-be killers in prison.

Many of the NYPD operations were built with help from the CIA, which is prohibited from spying on Americans.

"The New York Police Department is doing everything it can to make sure there's not another 9/11 here," NYPD spokesman Paul Browne said. "And we have nothing to apologize for in that regard."

In response to the story, the Council on American-Islamic Relations, a leading Muslim civil rights organization, called on the Justice Department to investigate.

"This is potentially illegal what they're doing," said Gadeir Abbas, a staff attorney with the organization. (AP)

Search for Gadhafi Intensifies

Libyans float reward for dictator's capture as rebels take control

Tripoli, Libya

Libyans hunting Moammar Gadhafi offered a $2 million bounty on the fallen dictator's head and amnesty for anyone who kills or captures him as rebels battled Wednesday to clear the last pockets of resistance from Tripoli.

While pockets of die-hard loyalists kept up the fight to defend Gadhafi, his support crumbled. Even his foreign minister said Gadhafi's 42-year rule was over.

Asked by British broadcaster Channel 4 if a negotiated settlement or safe passage for Gadhafi from Libya were still possible, Foreign Minister Abdul Ati al-Obeidi said: "It looks like things have passed this kind of solution."

Later, Col. Khalifa Mohammed, Gadhafi's deputy of intelligence chief, told Al-Arabiya television that he had defected to the rebels.

A Libyan rebel peers into the Tripoli home of al-Saadi Gadhafi, one of Moammar Gadhafi's sons. Opposition forces looted several homes of his children Wednesday.

Freedom for the Press

Dozens of journalists were released from a Tripoli hotel Wednesday after five days of sniper fire, power cuts, dwindling supplies and threats by two nervous, armed men loyal to Moammar Gadhafi. The group, which included ex-congressman Walter Fauntroy, had slept huddled on the floor in a wing of the hotel for fear of being attacked in their rooms. Many were taken by the Red Cross to another Tripoli hotel, where they hugged friends and colleagues. (AP/TWP)

Still, a defiant Gadhafi vowed from hiding to fight on "until victory or martyrdom," in an audio message early Wednesday.

Rebel leaders made first moves to extend their political control to the entire country and set up a new government in the capital. During Libya's six-month civil war, opposition leaders had established their interim administration in the eastern city of Benghazi, which fell under rebel control shortly after the uprising began in February.

Still, Tripoli was far from calm, with pro-regime snipers cutting off the road to the airport and other loyalist fighters launching attacks on Gadhafi's compound, which rebels captured Tuesday. Four Italian journalists were kidnapped on the highway to the capital.

Rebels found no sign of Gadhafi after the Tuesday battle for the compound, but rumors churned of his whereabouts. A White House spokesman said there was no evidence to indicate he had left Libya, but rebel officials acknowledged they could not find him. (AP)

EU Sanctions Iran for Role in Syrian Violence

Brussels

The European Union on Wednesday announced sanctions against the elite unit of Iran's Revolutionary Guard, saying the Quds Force is providing equipment and support to help President Bashar Assad crush Syria's uprising.

The sanctions ratchet up the increasing international pressure on Syria by targeting its ally Iran.

The EU's blacklist against Syria now contains 50 people and nine entities who face asset freezes and travel bans. Rights groups say Assad's forces have killed more than 2,000 people. (AP)

Peruvian Jungle Buckles Under 7.0 Quake

Lima, Peru

A strong but deep earthquake shook a sparsely populated northern jungle region of Peru on Wednesday and was felt mildly in the capital. There were no reports of injuries or damage.

The quake had a magnitude of 7.0 and was centered 50 miles north of the jungle city of Pucallpa, near the border with Brazil, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

The temblor occurred at 1:46 p.m. EDT, 90 miles underground, the agency said.

"A great rattling" is how Pucallpa police official Angela Romero described it. She said people moved calmly into the street.

An official at Peru's Institute of Geophysics said that, because of the quake's depth, it felt like only a magnitude 5 earthquake to Pucallpa's residents.

Quake Comparison

Wednesday's earthquake in Peru clocked in at a magnitude of 7.0, though centered about 90 miles underground, officials said. In contrast, the epicenter of the magnitude 5.8 temblor that rocked the East Coast on Tuesday was a mere 3.7 miles underground. The deeper the quake, the less likely it is to cause substantial damage. (AP)

Brazilian town of Cruzeiro do Sul, about 135 miles northeast of Pucallpa, said the quake hit hard and buildings trembled.

Peru ranks among the world's most seismically active countries, and its most recent deadly earthquake occurred Aug. 15, 2007.

That temblor, at a magnitude of 7.9, killed 596 people and largely destroyed the coastal city of Pisco, just south of the capital of Lima. (AP)

After Quake, Metro Back to Speed

Crews worked most of night to inspect the entire transit system

Washington

Metro officials said they've inspected 106 miles of track, tunnels and aerial structures after Tuesday's earthquake and have found only minor damage.

Metro spokesman Dan Stessel said more than 300 Metro personnel started inspections of the infrastructure Tuesday after the quake and worked overnight to finish them just before the 5 a.m. Wednesday opening of the system.

Some travelers had a long commute home Tuesday as trains ran at 15 mph — down from their potential of up to 60 mph.

The tracks and aerial structures were inspected visually by 40 structural inspectors, 25 structural engineers, 160 track personnel and 85 plant maintenance personnel, he said.

"It was full deployment to inspect the system," he said.

Test trains ran at normal speed along the tracks before the system opened Wednesday.

"We've operated in abundance of caution with safety as our highest priority," Stessel said. "The system is safe for service. If we had any concerns we wouldn't be running trains."

The minor damage in the system includes "a number of ceiling tiles" that had fallen at stations, he said. An elevator at Cheverly was closed for "structural inspections," Stessel said.

One track at New Carrollton station had some "power issues" but they were resolved, Stessel said. A sinkhole at the Deanwood stop affected service on one of the two tracks but was repaired overnight, he said.

Stessel said all of Metro's parking garages were checked and deemed safe. There was some minor damage to the concrete exteriors of the parking structures at Vienna, Shady Grove and Southern Avenue.

"We're going back and looking at [rail] yard and support facilities," Stessel said. "To make sure they're all right. Our priority was getting the system back on its feet for Wednesday."

Stessel said Metro is tracking the cost of the damage but does not yet have an assessment. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

A Loudoun County judge Wednesday sentenced 19-year-old Jaime Ayala to life plus 40 years in prison, the maximum sentence, for the 2009 murder of William Bennett and the savage beating of his wife Cynthia Bennett. The doctor who first saw Bennett in the emergency room said: "In 30 years, I don't think I've ever seen such damage." "The words that come to my mind are heinous, reprehensible, evil, inexcusable, unjustifiable, detestable, disgusting," the judge said.

The report said the administration was guilty of nepotism, cronyism, paying excessive salaries and other misdeeds. (AP)

Parking Tickets Net D.C. Millions

AAA: City's proactive approach resulted in $80M in '10 revenue

Washington

The District's efficient corps of parking meter enforcement officers are raking in revenue for the cash-strapped city at a dizzying rate this year.

Their parking tickets reap $1.5 million a week, or $219,000 a day, or $450 a minute or $8 a second, according to the folks at AAA, who are fond of dissecting numbers like the overall $80 million in ticket revenue last year.

The numbers are up sharply this year, AAA said, with more than $50 million collected by May.

"The District government is prolific in its parking-ticket-writing prowess. Few do it better than the District because public parking is very limited in the city," said John B. Townsend II, a spokesman for AAA Mid-Atlantic.

Townsend said the city's 204 parking enforcement officers issued nearly 1.8 million parking tickets during fiscal 2010 and had given out 1.1 million this year as of May 20.

AAA filed a Freedom of Information Act request with the District to obtain the information.

AMANDA VOISARD/TWP

The city's 204 parking officers wrote 1.8 million tickets in FY 2010, AAA says.

Townsend said that, unlike in many other cities, people who fight parking tickets in the District have a reasonable chance of success. He said that hearing examiners at the Department of Motor Vehicles dismissed 43 percent of tickets in 2010 and had tossed out 47 percent of the 89,068 contested tickets as of May this year.

A survey by AAA of the nation's large cities found that many are turning to parking revenue to bolster shrinking budgets.

"More cities, including the District, have increased or plan to increase parking fees and meter rates to balance their budgets, and it has created a backlash from residents, motorists and business owners, who see such hikes as another onerous tax," Townsend said. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

MLK Memorial Dedication Still Set for Sunday

Washington

The dedication of the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial on the National Mall is still scheduled for Sunday morning, rain or shine — despite the threat of a direct hit on the East Coast from Hurricane Irene.

The King Foundation tweeted Wednesday afternoon that there's been no change to the dedication plans.

Up to 250,000 people are expected to attend Sunday morning, and President Barack Obama is scheduled to speak.

National Park Service spokesman Bill Line said Wednesday that it was too early to make a decision because it wasn't clear what path the hurricane would take. (AP)

Engineers scour the region for damage from Tuesday's quake

Washington

Structural engineering teams fanned out across the Washington region Wednesday, assessing millions of dollars of damage caused by a forceful earthquake that left potentially dangerous cracks in some landmarks, federal buildings, schools, churches and homes.

The Washington Monument, the Washington National Cathedral and the Smithsonian Castle were closed while inspectors determined the extent of damage. The National Building Museum also was closed, forcing officials to move a dedication event for the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial to the Washington Convention Center.

"It's just surreal," said Joe Alonso, head mason of the Washington National Cathedral, as he stood on the roof of the building he has tended for nearly 30 years, surveying debris of cracked limestone angels, toppled spires and off-kilter pillars.

Schools in the District and Prince George's County also stayed shut for the day, though most are expected to resume classes Thursday. And officials in Prince George's kept a shelter open for a second night for the nearly 500 people displaced when two apartment buildings sustained enough damage to be condemned.

Though the full cost of the damage from Tuesday's 5.8-magnitude earthquake may not be known for weeks, it is expected to be high, and mostly uninsured.

EQECAT, a Calif.-based firm that helps insurance companies determine catastrophe risks, estimated that the quake that rocked

A U.S. Park Police official stands guard Wednesday at the Washington Memorial, which is closed to the public indefinitely after the towering obelisk sustained cracks in Tuesday's 5.8-magnitude earthquake, which jostled the East Coast.

— RON KIRBY, TRANSPORTATION PLANNING COORDINATOR FOR THE METROPOLITAN WASHINGTON COUNCIL OF GOVERNMENTS. HIS COMMENTS APPEAR IN A STORY IN THURSDAY'S WASHINGTON POST THAT DETAILS HOW TUESDAY'S EARTHQUAKE AND JANUARY'S TREACHEROUS WINTER STORM HAVE EXPOSED THE CHALLENGES IN EVACUATING WASHINGTON IN CASE OF AN EMERGENCY, BE IT A TERRORIST ATTACK OR NATURAL DISASTER.

the East Coast from Georgia to Ontario caused $200 million to $300 million damage. But less than $100 million is insured.

Officials throughout the region encouraged residents to check their homes for cracks in the foundations and chimneys, and leaks in gas and water lines.

Maryland, Virginia and District officials said it was too early to get estimates on the cost of earthquake damage. But one District official said the damage is expected to cost the city at $5 million to $10 million, including the inspections of city buildings and 125 schools.

Mayor Vincent Gray is expected to declare an emergency and request the use of emergency disaster funds. Gray said 55 schools sustained damage, and 13 were flagged as more serious. In Prince George's County, at least 37 schools were damaged.

While the damage to the Washington National Cathedral is not structural, it will cost millions of dollars to repair the exterior.

Samuel Lloyd, the cathedral dean, said a Saturday service to mark the opening of the King Memorial would be moved to the National Shrine as engineers figure out how to stabilize its spires, which stand 300 feet above ground.

Three spires, or pinnacles, at the cathedral's highest point fell off in Tuesday's quake, and the fourth shifted. The cathedral is not insured for earthquakes, a spokesman said. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

At the Zoo

Always the First to Know

Her name is Iris, and with her elegant, red-orange hair she is beyond dispute the prettiest orangutan at the National Zoo. Calm and unflappable, she's known as "the queen" by zoo officials. On Tuesday, the queen lost her cool — and she wasn't alone before the rest of us felt the earth shake.

The zoo documented a broad range of animal behaviors before, during and after the tremor that shook much of the Eastern U.S. For example, a gorilla shrieked and grabbed her baby before racing to the top of a climbing structure just seconds before the ground began to shake. Two other apes had already dropped their food and skedaddled to higher turf.

The 64 flamingos clustered in a huddle before the quake hit. An elephant made a low-pitched noise as if to communicate with two other elephants. And red ruffed lemurs emitted an alarm cry a full 15 minutes before the quake.

Now the question is: What did the animals know, and when did they know it? Therein lies a scientific mystery, one in which hard facts and solid observations are entangled with lore and legend.

But maybe Tuesday's zoo events are only a reminder that many wild animals are paying close attention to nature while humans are doing whatever it is that humans do. "Animals seem to know," said K.C. Braesch, one of the zoo's primate keepers. "You always hear it anecdotally, but this is the first time I've seen it." (TWP)

John Beck will face his old team when the Redskins play the Ravens Thursday.

Beck Seeks Edge Over Grossman

The Redskins

If familiarity with your opponent means anything, then John Beck has an advantage over Rex Grossman in the next installment of their duel to become the Redskins' starting quarterback.

Beck spent the entire 2009 season with the Baltimore Ravens, who host the Redskins in Thursday night's preseason game. As the third-string quarterback with Baltimore, Beck regularly practiced against an esteemed defensive unit led by linebacker Ray Lewis, safety Ed Reed and tackle Haloti Ngata.

At this point in his career, Beck has a chance to stand atop the depth chart. With the Ravens, his only chance to play came in the days leading up to Sunday.

"They are an unbelievable defense," Beck said.

Redskins coach Mike Shanahan wouldn't name his starter against Baltimore.

Thus far, the competition is fairly even.

Grossman went 19 for 26 for 207 yards and a touchdown in a 16-7 win over Pittsburgh while Beck was sidelined with a groin injury. Beck returned last week and was 14 for 17 for 140 yards in a 16-3 rout of Indianapolis. (AP)

Redskins running back Tim Hightower runs against the Indianapolis Colts during last week's preseason game. He'll start again on Thursday.

A Running Start

It hasn't taken very long for Hightower to make an impression in D.C.

The Redskins

When Tim Hightower was dealt from Arizona to Washington on July 31, he had bigger things to worry about than whether or not he would be the starting running back for the Redskins.

"I didn't even know the guys on the team. I had to learn the playbook," he said. "I felt like a rookie. I worked three years to not feel like that and I was back at square one."

But it did not take long for Hightower to make his presence felt. His speed and powerful running during training camp drew attention, and solid preseason performances have only added to the feeling that Hightower can be a game-breaking running back.

"He's a guy that has a gear — every time he's out there he's going full speed," wide receiver Santana Moss said. "He's showing us how he's going to run the ball during the regular season, and it helps the offensive line and the receivers know that this guy can break it at any moment."

Going into Thursday's preseason game in Baltimore, Hightower has the inside track for the starting job when the Redskins open on Sept. 11 — not bad for a guy who's had less than a month to learn a new system. "I feel like I've done what I've had to do," Hightower said.

The Redskins acquired Hightower primarily because his running style suits the team's zone-blocking scheme, where a one-cut-and-go back can have room to run. Hightower's preseason performances have borne that theory out, as he's averaged 7.1 yards per carry, including a 58-yard run against the Colts last week.

Hightower has improved his rushing total every year, finishing with a career-best 736 yards with the Cardinals last year. If there's a drawback to Hightower's upside, it's his troublesome fumbling habit, which has reared its head at times during training camp.

Still, Hightower believes he can be a driving force for the Redskins on the field and in the locker room. "I bring experience, leadership and a lot of passion," he said.

Hightower, an Alexandria native and former University of Richmond standout, is thrilled to be suiting up for the team he rooted for as a youngster.

"It's the best feeling in the world," he said. "To live a childhood dream and do it in your backyard, that's a perfect circle." ELLIOTT SMITH

"I like everything about him. He's a good blocker, an excellent runner and has been very productive."

— REDSKINS COACH MIKE SHANAHAN, ON TIM HIGHTOWER, WHO HAS EMERGED AS TOP RUNNING BACK FOR THE REDSKINS DURING THE TEAM'S FIRST TWO PRESEASON GAMES.

Ground Options

Ryan Torain

After Clinton Portis was released, Ryan Torain entered camp as the incumbent, but a fractured left hand opened the door for Tim Hightower to take his job. He will miss Thursday's game. "It's business. We push each other and hopefully we can be out there at the same time," Torain said.

Roy Helu

The Nebraska rookie has impressed coaches with his speed and quick adjustment to the pro game. He leads the team in carries and yards in the preseason. "After the first game, he realized he could play in this league," said offensive coordinator Kyle Shanahan.

Evan Royster

The Penn State rookie has shown flashes, but is a step behind other candidates. He may get extensive time in final preseason game. E.S.

Baltimore expands TV coverage in the Redskins' backyard

Pro Football

The Redskins and Ravens kick off their annual preseason game Thursday, a game that will be seen on ESPN in both Baltimore and Washington. At the end of the exhibition, Comcast SportsNet will offer an hourlong postgame show to viewers in both markets, covering both teams. Once the regular season starts, though, coverage of the two teams gets considerably more complicated, and fans in the two television markets don't always get to choose which team they're seeing.

When the teams play regular-season games at the same time on Sept. 18, for example, CSN viewers in the Montgomery and Prince George's counties suburbs will get a 90-minute Redskins postgame show. Viewers in neighboring Howard and Anne Arundel counties, some of whom live less than 15 miles from the Redskins' FedEx Field, will instead get a 90-minute Ravens postgame show.

The Redskins' traditional dominance in places like Montgomery and Prince George's counties hasn't stopped the Ravens from expanding their television reach this year.

The Ravens and Redskins traditionally play a preseason game each year, with this season's taking place Thursday in Baltimore.

"I'm told there are a lot of young people that really like the Ravens in this area. We want to build on that."

— RAVENS COACH JOHN HARBAUGH, ON MAKING INROADS WITH FANS IN WASHINGTON.

A preseason deal with Washington's ABC affiliate and an arrangement with CSN will bring more Ravens content to more Washington-area viewers, and, the Ravens hope, continue to enlarge their fan base.

"What we're really trying to do is fight for young fans, and fight for new people moving into the [Baltimore-Washington] area," Ravens President Dick Cass said this week. "The Redskins have been here forever; right now their brand is stronger than our brand."

Ravens officials said that they're not attempting to convert Redskins fans. "We're not trying to take anything from them," said Mark Burdett, the Ravens' vice president of corporate sales and development.

Dominant Force

The Redskins' dominance in the D.C. market is unchallenged. When the two teams' preseason broadcasts went head-to-head last Friday, the Redskins earned a 13.4 rating in D.C., according to Nielsen overnight figures, while the Ravens broadcast on WJLA got just a 1.4, about the same rating the Redskins achieved in the Baltimore market.

"They have nowhere near the tradition of Redskins fans," said

Ravens officials are confident their efforts to reach fans in Washington are worthwhile. The Ravens' preseason debut against the Philadelphia Eagles attracted 170,000 households in the D.C. market, far bigger than the audiences for most Capitals or Nationals games.

"Gangbusters," WJLA general manager Bill Lord said. "The audience seems to like them. It's a good product; it's a good team."

In May, Wainwright (father of musicians Rufus and Martha) released his most extensive career retrospective to date, the five-disc "40 Odd Years."

What criteria did you use to compile the tracklist for "40 Odd Years"?

I started out with the vague idea that I would pick the best songs, but of course that's anybody's call. A lot of songs didn't make it that I would have liked to have in the set, but I just had to grit my teeth and make

The Case of the Broken Heart

In 'The Boy Detective Fails,' an ex-kid sleuth aches for answers

Stage

Who doesn't love a story about a kid detective? The Boxcar Children, Bobbsey Twins, Encyclopedia Brown — all tales of youngsters full of pluck and derring-do who make wrong things right. Until something happens that stomps that pluck flat.

That's the concept behind "The Boy Detective Fails," a world-premiere musical opening at Signature Theatre. Based on Joe Meno's 2006 novel of the same name, the play tells the story of 30-year-old Billy Argo, a former child sleuth who returns home after a stint in a mental hospital brought on by his younger sister's suicide.

Adapting the not-exactly-"Oklahoma!" subject matter was a challenge; conjuring songs from it, even more so. "There's nothing harder than doing a new musical," says director Joe Calarco. "Nothing. You're in a vacuum, in that you're going purely from the story and not anyone's preconceptions of the show."

The offbeat characters and their unstable environment (pets, people and buildings keep vanishing)

Thomas Adrian Simpson (left, as Professor Von Golum) and Stephen Gregory Smith (as Billy Argo) meet in a mental ward in "The Boy Detective Fails."

The Story

Billy Argo (Stephen Gregory Smith) was a successful boy detective whose talents proved useless in determining why his sidekick sister killed herself. After a long stay in a mental institution, Billy returns to his New Jersey town, where he must balance his search for answers with his telemarketing job.

add yet more complexity. "There's no straight man in the show," says Calarco. "No heroine where they fall in love at the end. It's a real world, but it's ... off."

Calarco's love of child detective stories helped him interpret the narrative for the stage. Particularly "that image of people clumped together in a dark hallway, trying to solve a mystery, like in 'Scooby-Doo,'" he notes.

While the show has its somber moments, it's not depressing, Calarco insists.

"For me, it's a haunted 'Our Town.' We brought a lot of color into the show, because I don't think of it as a depressing, dark world. I do think it's a story about hope. Without hope, Billy would have immediately killed himself."

A Feast of Fests

Poor D.C., without its own multiday, sleepover destination music fest. No South by Southwest to flood every hotel with jeggings and Ray-Bans. No Bonnaroo to build a tent city around. We don't even get a regional Gathering of the Juggalos. (Insane Clown Posse rules!) But really, it's a blessing. All summer long, Washingtonians get to festival-hop among smaller, diverse daylong touring fests and weekend events. And though the sun is starting to set on summer, you still have time to take in some al fresco tunes. Here are our picks for music fests to catch as the season winds down. RUDI GREENBERG (EXPRESS)

Virgin Mobile FreeFest

When: Sat., Sept. 10; gates open at 11 a.m.
Where: Merriweather Post Pavilion, 10475 Little Patuxent Pkwy., Columbia; 410-715-5550, Virginmobilefestival.com.

How Much: Free (sold out); $49.50 for a "fan pack" including admission, a T-shirt, poster and concession discounts.

Now in its sixth year, the Virgin Mobile FreeFest was originally positioned to be the DMV's destination festival, back when it was held over two days at Baltimore's Pimlico Race Course. Then the economy tanked, and Virgin downsized it to one day, moved it to Merriweather and made it free. Now, three years into the free experiment, the fest is sort of a micro version of Jane's Addiction frontman Perry Farrell's genre-crossing Lollapalooza festival. Corporate sponsorships are plastered everywhere and there are plenty of giveaways, but with three stages and nearly 20 acts, it's the still the best bang for your proverbial buck.

THE MUSIC

The FreeFest has some big names this time out, including TV on the Radio, punk legend Patti Smith, Cee Lo Green and up-and-comers Grace Potter and the Nocturnals. Blues-rock duo the Black Keys, mega-fest pros at this point in their career, also get a headline slot. But under-the-radar Canadian DJ Deadmau5 may end up being this year's biggest draw; the mouse-mask-wearing beatmaster has a growing cult following and sold out three nights at 9:30 Club last summer. 2010's FreeFest closed with a performance by New York dance-punkers LCD Soundsystem — the band's last area show before calling it quits — and vocalist James Murphy returns this year for a solo DJ set.

SHARON JONES &amp; THE DAP-KINGS

Silopanna Music Festival

When: Sat., Aug. 27, gates open at 11:30 a.m.

Where: Anne Arundel County Fairgrounds, 1450 Generals Highway, Crownsville, Md.; 410-244-1131, Silopannafest.com.

How Much: $39.50-$45; VIP $195-$225

Organized by Rams Head (of venues Rams Head Live in Baltimore and Rams Head On Stage in Annapolis), the Silopanna Music Festival — that's "Annapolis" spelled backward — holds its inaugural date Saturday. The daylong, family-friendly concert will feature three stages and plenty of non-musical activities, including a corn hole tournament, face painting, yoga demonstrations and a dunk tank.

THE MUSIC

Rams Head has booked a lineup that's mostly local, including longtime scenesters Jimmie's Chicken Shack and the All Mighty Senators. But there are some bigger names, too, including funk/soul revivalists Sharon Jones & the Dap-Kings and brassy rising stars Trombone Shorty & Orleans Avenue.

HFStival

When: Sat., Sept. 17; gates at 10 a.m.

Where: Merriweather Post Pavilion, 10475 Little Patuxent Parkway, Columbia, Md.; 800-551-7328, Whfs.radio.com.

How Much: $35-$50

Anyone who grew up around D.C. in the '90s and was into flannel remembers making the annual pilgrimage to RFK Stadium (which hosted the festival 10 times) to commune with other members of the Alternative Nation. From 1990 to 2006, the HFStival was the area's coolest music event, hosting Eminem, the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Foo Fighters, Kanye West and even the Ramones. When 99.1 WHFS — the radio station that started it all — abruptly went off the air in 2005, the fest lingered one more year before going on hiatus. The fest returned last year with a nostalgia-riffic lineup featuring Third Eye Blind and Everclear. And last month, WHFS returned to the air on 97.5 FM, just in time for the festival's 20th incarnation.

GIN BLOSSOMS

AVETT BROTHERS

FLOGGING MOLLY

THE MUSIC

This year, the HFStival looks forward with a lineup that's light on radio hits but big on potential. It's headlined by folk-rock trio the Avett Brothers, Irish punkers (and perennial Shamrock Fest headliners) Flogging Molly and Philadelphia indie rockers Dr. Dog. The day's three stages will also bring some local love, with Germantown, Md.-based metal band Clutch taking the main stage and Silver Spring reggae group Lionize headlining the local stage. For added '90s authenticity, the Gin Blossoms will deliver many a guitar-charged ballad about jealousy and lost love.

'Just the Joy of Starting Over'

Tim Kasher breaks away from his two bands to test the waters as a solo artist

Music

For more than 10 years now, Tim Kasher has consistently fronted and toured with two Nebraska bands: post-punkers Cursive and the more folk-inflected group the Good Life. With Cursive, Kasher's been on "The Late Show with David Letterman" and opened for the Cure, and he continues to release albums on Saddle Creek Records with both groups. So, why is Kasher touring solo?

"It's been a breath of fresh air," says Kasher. "It just keeps me mentally interested in the whole thing." Playing a show without the weight of a decade-long back catalog allows him to perform entirely new material without worrying about disappointing longtime fans. "I wasn't feeling stagnant or cooped up musically," he insists. "It really is just the joy of starting over again."

Last year, Kasher released his first full-length solo disc, "The Game of Monogamy," and he's selling a new EP of outtakes from those

"I've just been really curious about that intense struggle that we all have to just get along."

sessions exclusively on tour beginning this month. Fans of Kasher's other projects will recognize his sound — somewhere between Cursive's more upbeat moments and the dark Americana of the Good Life — as well as the familiar theme of betrayal that winds its way through the material.

"[The projects] have a tendency to overlap," explains Kasher, "but there is some separation I do intentionally. I only wanted to [record "The Game of Monogamy"] if I had an album's worth of fresh viewpoints on the subjects."

The record addresses broken relationships — particularly the pain of infidelity, an issue prevalent in his previous work. "For a long time, I've just been really curious about that intense struggle that we all have to just get along," Kasher says. "More specifically when it comes to the sexes and our sexual partners. There's so much diplomacy in that kind of relationship."

Putting out such weighty material under his own name hasn't been without anxiety. "With every album I put out, I get fairly nervous," he says. "[This one has been] received really warmly. I feel like I already have enough support to move forward with it without feeling too awful." RYAN LITTLE

Creative Writing Instruments

The body of the 18th-century Ottoman jewel-encrusted rifle below pops open to reveal a penholder, pen and dagger, among other items.

Museums

Somebody in 1730s Ottoman Turkey was once the proud owner of the Mercedes Benz of rifles. Make that the Brookstone edition of the Mercedes Benz of rifles.

Made of precious metals and covered in nephrite, diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the weapon also conveniently housed a variety of writing instruments in its handle. The whole blinged-out collection, including a matching reed pen and penknife, is now on view as part of "The Art of the Writing Instrument from Paris to Persia" exhibit at the Walters Art Museum in Baltimore.

"The rifle is a ceremonial piece, and it was probably never shot," says Amy Landau, the museum's associate curator of Islamic art and manuscripts. But the flashy pen was used — probably by the sultan whose imperial sign appears on the rifle (in nearly 200 diamonds), or by somebody he gave it to, Landau says.

Why equip a rifle with a writing instrument? It seems silly today, but it made sense in the Islamic world, when "one who hunts was one who was well-educated and who would write poems or diplomatic correspondence," Landau says.

While the rifle is the exhibit's most eye-catching piece, about 25 other items from 17th- to 19th-century Europe, the Middle East and Asia also offer unexpected insight into the importance of writing back in the days when penmanship really mattered. Brushes, inkwells, writing desks and writing tables are among the ornate items.

Certain objects, such as pen cases ("really hot" in 19th-century Iran, Landau says), will be familiar to 21st-century eyes. A silver and gold 19th-century Japanese writing set containing a tiny brush, ink, a compass, a sundial and a calendar might seem a bit more exotic.

But we actually know this concept well, Landau says. "It's innovation in technology, just like a Smartphone with GPS. This guy in 19th-century Japan has the compass, the sundial and the calendar, all in this compact object he also used for writing."

Sketchy Characters

In 'Drawing Power,' historians look at the crossroads of 'toons and advertisements

Books

Cartoons and advertising were married long before Snoopy was shilling for MetLife. Since as far back as the late 1800s, 'toons have played a role in hawking everything from Ovaltine (Harold Gray's Little Orphan Annie) to cigars (Richard F. Outcault's very underage Yellow Kid).

In their new book, "Drawing Power: A Compendium of Cartoon Advertising 1870s-1940s" (Marschall Books, $29), Warren Bernard and Rick Marschall examine the history of cartoons and commerce — and the sometimes sordid relationship between them.

Take "Little Nemo" artist Winsor McCay's gorgeous — and jarring to modern-day eyes — series of Lucky Strike ads from the late 1920s, for example. The book reproduces the series in beautiful full color, all the better to ponder the ads' message: Smoking Luckies represents a victory for "American Intelligence" over the "ancient prejudice" against cigarette smoking.

Bernard — assistant executive director of the Small Press Expo, Maryland's annual alternative comics convention — notes that McCay, who had a long career as William Randolph Hearst's main editorial cartoonist, actually began his career as an ad man. We might remember him for "Gertie the Dinosaur," but McCay "started out doing posters for circuses," Bernard says. "Advertising was something he started in, rather than fell into."

Lots of other cartoonists have

Timeless Appeal: "Little Nemo" artist Winsor McCay also worked on military recruiting posters, such as the one above. "This is dated right after the [1918] armistice," author Warren Bernard says. "Notice one of the places to go is Siberia, to distribute aid to [anti-Communist] Russians." Options for recruits are a bit different today, but the "pick a service, pick a challenge" theme is timeless. "Nothing has changed except the medium," he notes. "The message has not changed."

"You still get [ads], although now the superheroes pretty much advertise their own in-brand products. Marvel belongs to Disney."

lent their pens to the ad game. As for "Lil' Abner" creator Al Capp, "there wasn't anything he wouldn't put his name on," says Bernard.

Things are only a little different for comic characters today, he explains. "You still get [ads], although now the superheroes pretty much advertise their own in-brand products. Marvel belongs to Disney and DC belongs to Time Warner."

Dollar signs aside, Bernard says that cartoon ads should still be viewed as real art. "Commercial work is thought to be cheap, that it's not people's art but a mere work-for-hire," he says. "Well, Toulouse-Lautrec got hired to do covers of menus." PAUL STELTER

Not Necessarily 'The Way It Is'

Bruce Hornsby keeps his songs fresh with constant reinvention

Music

Bruce Hornsby's biggest hits may have been 25 years ago, but he's no slave to nostalgia joylessly banging out "The Way It Is" and "Mandolin Rain" every night on stage. The Virginia-born pianist prefers to keep tinkering with his songs, which he says are best when they're malleable, "when they can be molded and shaped in lots of different ways," he says. "I'm pretty restless creatively. It's hard for me to do the same thing night after night, so I don't do the same thing."

Bruce Hornsby plays back recordings of his shows in an effort to keep improving.

That means constantly rethinking his songs and making sure the Noisemakers, his backing band, are always open to rearranging them on the fly. That spontaneity colors their new double album,

"Bride of the Noisemakers," which collects live versions of Hornsby's own songs and adventurous covers of songs by Pink Floyd and Creedence Clearwater Revival.

The album showcases the Noise-

"I really know the sound of me doing pretty well, and I know the sound of me sucking."

makers' range, which they've honed over the past decade together. "There are various aesthetics that we've dealt with over the years," he says, noting that the band alternates between "music that utilizes the jazz language, music that is more folk-oriented, songs that are more R&B and funk, and any combination of those elements. Consequently, if you don't like this record, then you shouldn't come hear us, because this is as good as we get."

Hornsby has been working hard to get this good: He even records all of his shows for intense study. "I painstakingly go through all of them and grade them assiduously," he says. "I'll hear things that I thought were good but just don't sound like me. So I really know the sound of me doing pretty well, and I know the sound of me sucking."

Hornsby realizes that constantly reinventing songs may alienate some longtime fans who want to hear the familiar piano chords from "The Way It Is" — a song he's currently playing as a bluegrass jam. But, he says, "I think what I owe my audience is music that I'm passionate about." STEPHEN M. DEUSNER

MAGALI BRAGARD

Pretty Deadly

"COLOMBIANA," opening Friday, focuses on a young woman who is quite pretty (Zoe Saldana) and who also is really good at killing people. So we thought we'd look back on other beauties who did beastly things on screen. K.P.K.

1 Ripley

In the "Alien" series, Sigourney Weaver kicks ass, takes names, then sets fire to the list the names are written on. Then eats it. And chases it with whiskey. That she made from her enemies' blood.

2 The Bride

In 2003's "Kill Bill Vol. 1," Uma Thurman slices, dices and juliennes all those who ever crossed her, and does it without eating a single carb. That's how she fits into that yellow jumpsuit.

3 Coffy

Pam Grier landed her first leading role in this 1973 film, in which she takes to the streets to end the drug trade in the name of her little sister. Forget "Just Say No": Coffy's techniques are really more "Just Say AIEEEEEEE!"

4 Sarah Connor

You notice how most of these women are mother figures, or fighting for some sort of child? In 1991's "Terminator 2: Judgment Day," Linda Hamilton is out to protect her jerky juvenile delinquent kid who, fine, eventually will save the world, so she gets extra points.

5 Trinity

Carrie-Anne Moss' computer genius looks great in black leather and knockout sunglasses for the duration of "The Matrix" series. Oh, and she also can fight and do other stuff.

Taste for the Finer Things

A documentary goes behind the scenes at a highly experimental Spanish restaurant

Screen

Gereon Wetzel, the director of the new documentary "El Bulli: Cooking in Progress," had never been to Ferran Adria's Michelin three-star restaurant in Roses, Spain — nor was he even interested in dining there. But he knew he wanted to make a film about it — particularly about the six months every year when El Bulli closes to the public and its chefs retreat to a Barcelona workshop to develop new dishes that push the boundaries of cuisine, like lollipops made from fluorescent fish.

Wetzel filmed Adria and his team over 15 months in 2008 and 2009 to document the painstaking process through which El Bulli's 30-course avant-garde menus are created. Coincidentally, he filmed during one of its last seasons; Adria closed El Bulli in July and plans to reopen it in a new form in 2014.

What was the biggest challenge you faced while filming?

The biggest challenge for us was the beginning of the documentary. When we came to Barcelona, to the workshop the first week, we didn't understand anything because [the Ferran Adria tastes an oil-water cocktail in "El Bulli: Cooking in Progress." The savory sip never made it off the drawing board.

"I think there are some very good films about El Bulli with talking heads. But it's not the film I wanted to do."

— GEREON WETZEL, DIRECTOR OF "EL BULLI: COOKING IN PROGRESS," ABOUT HOW THE FANTASTICALLY INNOVATIVE RESTAURANT DEVELOPED ITS OUTLANDISH DISHES

chefs] were working so fast, and working simultaneously on five new dishes and ideas. To understand how they work was really a big challenge for us.

Adria says in the film that he wants his food to make people bewildered — which sounds like your own experience. Were you worried that your audience also would feel bewildered?

We wanted to order the chaos, so the editing is very much focused on five or six dishes. But we thought that somebody might not understand everything, and that's very real — you don't understand everything.

Why did you use an observational filming style, rather than one with a stronger narrative?

I really preferred to let the audience discover this world and not to let it be explained by anyone. I think there are some very good films about El Bulli with talking heads. It's very interesting, but it's not the film I wanted to do.

Who is your intended audience?

I'm a bit like Ferran, in that I make the film that I like. But I think it is a very interesting film for creative people, working musicians, graphic designers, architects. It's really hard work; it's not that the ideas fall from the sky. For foodies, I think it could be very interesting as well, because the way [El Bulli's chefs] think and the way they start things is sometimes very, very easy, or very minimalistic. It's a contrast to cooking shows.

What was the craziest food item that was developed while you were filming?

Hazelnut oil-water cocktail. It's radical and it's crazy and it's very easy. But Ferran discarded it from the menu, because he said it was too violent for the people.

One Rhine Day

You ever hear of those crazy "ultramaraathons" where people run for, like, more than 24 hours at a time? If everything but the "running" part of that sounds fun, you can carve a custom butt-groove into a seat at the Goethe-Institut this weekend for its screening of "24 Hours Berlin: A Day in the Life." The day of Fri., Sept. 5, 2008, was filmed by 80 different camera teams, and the result is screening from 6 a.m. Saturday to 6 a.m. Sunday. There will be Berlin-style snacks available for purchase at lunch and dinner and a birthday cake at 6 p.m. to celebrate writer Johann Wolfgang von Goethe's 262nd birthday. You can drop in or stay the entire time — pillows and sleeping bags are welcome. It's free, but reservations are recommended. ► Goethe-Institut Washington, 812 7th St. NW; Sat., 6 p.m.-Sun., 6 p.m., free; 202-289-1200 Ext. 162, Goethe.de/Washington. (Gallery Place/Chinatown)

goingoutguide.com | Weekend Pass*5 Last Laugh

"The Aristocrats" is an old joke that's not really a joke at all. It's more a rambling, pointless, filthy story than the standard setup and punch line — and it gets progressively more shocking as it unfolds. Ribald theater troupe Cherry Red's last performance before disbanding will be a one-night-only staging of the joke, in which a dog also factors. Melissa-Leigh Bustamante, left, plays the dog. For everyone's safety, we recommend leaving actual pets (and parents, and children) at home. → Warehouse Theater, 645 New York Ave. NW; Sat., 8:30 and 11 p.m., $29-$49; Cherryredproductions.com. WEEKEND
1 Heavy Hitters

Getting to see local doom-rock legends Pentagram live is like catching a glimpse of a unicorn. Fraggie-looking frontman Bobby Liebling, above right, has had his struggles, but lately the band has been keeping it together and actually playing gigs. Pentagram is also finally getting its due as a huge influence on the heavy-rock movement, with recent coverage in SPIN and a new doc, "Last Rites: The Fall and Rise of Bobby Liebling," making the film-fest rounds. The band brings the sludge to Sonar Saturday — and will probably even show up. → Sonar, 407 E. Saratoga St., Baltimore; Sat., 8 p.m., $18; 410-327-8333, Sonarbaltimore.com.

2 Home Office

One nice thing about living in D.C. is that the musicians who started the influential bands we cut our indie teeth on eventually return with super-indie supergroups. Witness the Office of Future Plans. Led by J. Robbins — of Jawbox, Government Issue and Burning Airlines fame — the band formed in 2009 and will release its debut full-length on Dischord in November. → DC9, 1940 9th St. NW; Sun., 8 p.m., $10; 202-483-5000, Dcnine.com. (U St.-Cardozo)

3 Lasting Legacy

On the same day as the unveiling of the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial, a less-remembered leader from the Civil Rights era will get a nod: Bayard Rustin, left. Directors Nancy Kates and Bennett Singer's 2003 film, "Brother Outsider," profiles the openly gay organizer and adviser to King who served as architect of the historic March on Washington. Singer will lead a talk on Rustin's legacy after the screening. → Busboys & Poets, 2021 14th St. NW; Sun., 6 p.m., free; 202-387-7638, Busboysandpoets.com. 4*Clean Lines

The name "Bauhaus" conjures images of '80s Goth dance nights — and the minimalist lines of the Bauhaus design school of 1920s Germany. "Publishing Modernism: The Bauhaus in Print" looks at the movement's influence through archival pieces from the school's printing workshop as well as through typography developed for magazines and books, such as the 1925 example above, from the National Gallery of Art's rare-book collection. → National Gallery of Art, 4th Street and Constitution Avenue NW; through Oct. 28, free; 202-737-4215, Nga.gov. ## Best Served Cold?

A pinch of sea salt. Two teaspoons of mustard. Three crisp, crumbled pieces of bacon. None of these ingredients seems strange if making bacon-encrusted mustard chicken, perhaps. But consider that these savory foods and seasonings are adding flavor to ice creams, gelatos and sorbets, and that's when things appear more out of the ordinary. "You really can try anything," says Carlos Delgado, Smith Common's chef de cuisine. "I've even done a chicken and lamb gelato." Still, if beet ice cream seems a little too weird even for an adventurous palate, we've weeded out the wacky from the whack.

We triple-dog-dare you to try. TEXT BY DARONA WILLIAMS (EXPRESS); PHOTOS BY MARGE ELY (EXPRESS)

Peanut Curry

The ice cream most liked in an office taste test, Ris' peanut curry is a bold and unique blend of Half & Half, heavy cream, eggs yolks, sugar, roasted peanuts and Madras curry powder. First Impression: It's like butter pecan, only better.

A Few Bites Later: Can you buy this by the gallon?

Another Peculiar Pick:

Butter Popcorn — we bet you can't eat just one scoop. ($9 per scoop) Ris, 2275 L St. NW; 202-730-2500, Risdc.com. (Foggy Bottom)

Bacon

Brabo caters to the upscale crowd, so try to avoid licking the plate when you get down to the last drops of this savory and sweet combination of candied bacon bits, maple caramel and bacon ice cream. First Impression: Maybe this is a little too decadent. A Few Bites Later: Can this be super-sized? Compliments from the Chef: Served as a dessert alongside a Belgian waffle, this rich and creamy creation can be a breakfast option as well. ($11) Brabo, 1600 King St., Alexandria; 703-894-3440, Braborestaurant.com. (King Street)

Ginger

At Smith Commons, chef Delgado first steeps ginger in milk. Next, the milk is stirred into a mixture of egg yolks, heavy cream and sugar. The result is a sweet gelato that tingles the palate. First Impression: That'll open up the ol' sinuses. A Few Bites Later: Ginger and sugar should mingle together on tongues more often. Another Peculiar Pick: Jalapeño — the fiery flavor of the pepper is subdued by the coolness of the gelato; this is a good thing. ($6 per scoop) Smith Commons, 1245 H St. NE; 202-396-0038, Smithcommonsd.com.

Mustard

Fresh cream, egg yolks and salt and pepper all take a back seat to the moutarde forte (a strong French mustard) that gives Poste's mustard ice cream its powerful punch. First Impression: Yep, tastes like mustard. A Few Bites Later: Whoa, it REALLY tastes like mustard. Compliments from the Chef: Served as part of a chilled heirloom tomato gazpacho, this ice cream is not to be eaten out of context. ($14) Poste Moderne Brasserie, 555 8th St. NW; 202-783-6060, Postebrasserie.com. (Gallery Place)

Raspberry Beet

Refined and earthy, 701 Restaurant's raspberry-beet ice cream owes its sweetness to delicate touches of the fruit and a good amount of sugar, which help to counteract the more natural, robust flavor of the beet. First Impression: Could use more texture. A Few Bites Later: And less beets. Compliments from the Chef: Served as part of the eatery's chocolate dome dessert. Beet lovers probably won't need the chocolate cake croutons that come with the ice cream; everyone else should ask for extra. ($9) 701 Restaurant, 701 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-393-0701, 701restaurant.com. (Archives)

Mexican Corn Truffle

Minced black truffles and bits of Heath toffee mix with whole milk, heavy cream, egg yolks, sugar, dark chocolate and ground cinnamon to create Rosa Mexicano's multi-textured ice cream. First Impression: Truffles make everything better. A Few Bites Later: What hunger pangs truffles can't satisfy, chocolate can. Another Peculiar Pick: Negra Modelo & Chocolate — or skip the ice cream and go straight for some chocolate-covered bacon. ($3.50 per scoop, available until Sep. 4) Rosa Mexicano, 575 7th St. NW; 202-783-5522, Rosamexicano.com. (Gallery Place)

Sea Salt

This best-selling gelato at Kushi (which actually comes from Georgetown's Dolcezza) is a simple mix of milk, cream, sugar and Maldon sea salt, and it's one of many reasons folks flock to the Mount Vernon Triangle hot spot. First Impression: Brings back memories of vanilla frozen yogurts. A Few Bites Later: A high kick to the salt receptors heightens the flavor from bland to refreshing and creamy. Another Peculiar Pick: Black Sesame — it's like chasing Reese's Pieces with a glass of whole milk. ($3.75 per scoop) Kushi, 465 K St. NW; 202-682-3123, Eatkushi.tumblr.com. (Mt. Vernon Square)

Exotic Spice

For Birch and Barley's fruity sorbet, passion fruit, apricot, coconut, banana, mango and lime juice are mixed with cinnamon, ginger, clove and pepper. First Impression: It tastes like Christmas. A Few Bites Later: The ice cream was no more. Another Peculiar Pick: Sweet Corn (ice cream) — though binging is less likely with this sour oxymoron unless you get it as a part of the restaurant's Popped Blueberry Tart dessert. ($10, $8.50 for a tasting of five sorbets) Birch and Barley, 1337 14th St. NW; 202-567-2576, Birchandbarley.com. (U Street)

The Right Stuffing

El Centro D.F. takes taco fillings beyond the basics and back

New Spot

Chef Richard Sandoval is an empire builder. The Mexican maestro already owns Masa 14, Zengo and La Sandia here in the D.C. area — as well as numerous Latin-themed eateries around the world — but apparently that's not enough. He wants mas. Expanding his culinary kingdom even further, Sandoval opened El Centro D.F. in May with a focus on simple "south of the border" street food.

Vision: This taqueria and tequileria aspires to occupy the middle ground between mass-produced Mexican like Chipotle and higher-end ventures like Oyamel. "It's not about innovation," admits chef Antonio Burrell, who oversees the kitchen. "It's about making food that's near and dear to Richard's heart — the dishes he grew up on."

Eats: Diners are best served by sticking to the basics. Eschew the tacos stuffed with beef tongue or nopal (grilled cactus) and order the ones with more traditional fillings. The Baja ($13.95 for three) is stuffed with a griddled white fish (whatever is freshest and looks best that day) and perked up with chipotle aioli, while the Al Pastor ($12.95 for three) takes pork belly marinated in adobo (a paprika-based rub) and tops it with colorful cubes of sweet grilled pineapple and a light salsa verde. All the Tacos al Pastor tops pork belly with cubes of grilled pineapple and a light salsa verde.

Concrete and reclaimed wood round out El Centro D.F.'s industrial motif.

Atmosphere

Head to the dusky downstairs bar if you're on a date, stay on the main floor by the hustling and bustling open kitchen if you want to grab a fast bite, or ascend to the rooftop if you want to party like it's still Cinco de Mayo.

tacos platters come with rice and refried black beans topped with smooth queso fresco (mild white cheese), which should fill you up. If that's not enough, have some chips with guacamole ($9.95), which is made tableside and has the merest hint of heat courtesy of a piquant serrano chili.

Drinks: Looking to relive that debauched spring break in Cabo, the one that made "The Hangover" look like a fairy tale? With more than 200 kinds of tequila on hand ($8-$150 per shot), this is the place to do it. Class up your trip down memory lane by ordering a tasting flight, which come paired with the requisite lime wedges and a chaser shot of tangy sangrita (a blend of tomato, lime and orange juices). NEVIN MARTELL

• 1819 14th St. NW; 202-328-3131, Elcentrodf.com. (U Street)

Dine & Dash: Alas, summer is almost over, but don't relegate your fun to the confines of four walls just yet. Through September (weather permitting) on the restaurant's patio — and inside if you like — Art and Soul (415 New Jersey Ave. NW; 202-393-7777, Artandsoul.com) invites patrons to enjoy its Southern-inspired cuisine and a Louisiana-style three-crab boil at Barbecue Feast Tuesdays ($32 per person) and Crab and Beer Wednesdays ($35 per person), respectively.

Real Suicides

Russell Armstrong, above left, of Bravo's "Real Housewives of Beverly Hills," is not the first reality show cast member to take his own life. The husband of "housewife" Taylor, who hanged himself Aug. 15, joins a list of a dozen or so victims. Among them: A contestant from Sweden's "Survivor," who in 1997

By Marc Silver

stepped in front of a train; a boxer from NBC's 2005 "The Contender," who shot himself before the series aired; a chef from a Gordon Ramsey series who jumped off a bridge; and a 22-year-old from France's "Big Brother," who walked in front of a car on Aug. 10, reportedly because "he could not readjust to life in the outside world."

Reality show applicants undergo psychological evaluation. Yet troubled individuals clearly make it onto the programs. Perhaps the false reality of TV sends them spiraling downward. Then again, they might have fallen into despair without a TV stint.

Yet in the world of reality TV, tragedy doesn't stop the show. "Contender" producer Mark Burnett put it this way: "I'm not even going to make any edits [to the show] because it's real."

Bravo expressed sympathy to Armstrong's family — and announced plans to re-edit "RHOBH" in light of his death. Season 2 is set to start Sept. 5.

Glen Campbell, who was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, is planning a farewell tour before retiring from music.

"I'm not really worried about anything."

— GLEN CAMPBELL, WHO SUFFERS FROM ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE.

Hall of Fame member played his first show since announcing he has Alzheimer's, a degenerative brain disease that so far has proven incurable. That show was a dry run in preparation for a string of dates this summer and fall overseas, and for a goodbye tour next year in support of his last studio album, "Ghost on the Canvas," out Tuesday.

"What's really fun is it's not like work now because I've got my kids here, and my wife here, and they're all playing," Campbell says.

There are indeed moments of confusion, memories that refuse to coalesce and words for simple things that remain just out of reach. But for the most part, Campbell doesn't realize he has Alzheimer's.

"So far everything's been pretty good," Kim Campbell says. "Eventually I expect if this progresses as it normally does, we'll start to have problems. So we're preparing to get him off the road and retire, but we wanted to go out with a bang. We're all worried that if we stop, he'll get worse more quickly."

The power music has to preserve what Campbell has left is on display any time he picks up a guitar. His fingers have forgotten nothing and still float over the strings.

"I can't imagine what that guy must've been like at 25 because at 75 and in this condition he's frightening," said Julian Raymond, producer of "Ghost." "He's really very good. He's blessed in that sense."

Always has been. CHRIS TALBOTT (AP)

The Zen of Glen

Glen Campbell preps for a farewell tour as Alzheimer's disease slowly begins to set in

Album Review

Glen Campbell is having a great time.

Make no mistake, it is tragic that Alzheimer's disease is slowly stripping away the memories and abilities that define one of music's greats.

But day after day, surrounded by his family and friends, encouraged to play his guitar and sing and golf and joke, the 75-year-old Campbell is often smiling.

"I'm really not worried about

A Country Crossover

Glen Campbell was a true crossover star whose music appealed to both pop and country fans. He employed the ear and opinions he'd honed over years in the studio to put his own spin on instant classics like "Wichita Line-man," "Rhinstone Cowboy," "Gentle on My Mind," "Galveston," "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" and "Southern Nights." (AP) anything," Campbell says. "I think where I am at right now in this universe, I wouldn't want to be anything else than what I am."

Campbell's peace of mind has been reached through the hard work of his wife, Kim, his children and his business associates, who are often as close as family. They've created a carefully engineered environment meant to shelter and encourage Campbell at every turn, whether he's at home or on the road.

Last month, the Country Music

Lady Gaga's animated form will be featured on "The Simpsons." "Lisa Goes Gaga" takes Mama Monster to Springfield to cheer up the sax-playing elder Simpson daughter via "speech, song and a flash mob," Entertainment Weekly reports. Yeardley Smith, who voices Lisa, told Broadway.com that the writers described Gaga "as the happiest, most optimistic person in the world." She'll also kiss Marge Simpson, according to EW. ## Drivers Needed for Research Study Receive $300

Residents of Virginia who regularly use an integrated cell phone system in their vehicle are needed to participate in a federally funded research study on driving behavior. An integrated cell phone system allows you to make and receive phone calls with the touch of a steering wheel button and a built-in microphone that links to your vehicle's audio system. This system allows you to keep your hands on the steering wheel while making or receiving a call. Video cameras (no audio) and other equipment will be installed in your vehicle for one month. Participants receive $300. Please call 1-888-689-3669.

Horoscope

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may want to give someone else the very opportunity that you passed up recently. Today, generosity plays a key role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Once you get feedback on your work, you'll realize that you have to come at the same problems from a very different point of view.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Your enthusiasm is something for others to reckon with, and it will open some doors for you, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Don't go on and on when a few words will suffice. Economy of expression can work wonders for you at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Public opinion really isn't — and you'll realize that you needn't try to change anyone's mind about anything at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You've been putting too much stock in reports from those who don't have the information they need to be timely and accurate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Despite your attempts to teach others what should be done in a certain situation, old habits will die hard.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be feeling a growing kinship with someone whose motives are not very different from your own, but whose methods are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Any possessive behavior merely risks losing the very thing that you consider so valuable. It's time to loosen the reins a bit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be facing a challenge mounted by someone who has wanted to put you to the test for quite some time. You must bring your A-game.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You've not been doing the right things for yourself lately, even though others have benefited from your care and generosity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A certain problem may seem unusually stubborn, but you know, deep down, that a solution is close at hand. Find it.

The Cattiest Thing You Can Say About a Wedding Filmed For TV Is That It Felt Like TV?

More disgruntled guests at Kim Kardashian and Kris Humphries' wedding have surfaced, Usmagazine.com reported. "Everybody felt awkward, like it was all for the cameras and more like a TV show than a wedding," griped one. The groom's family "mostly looked appalled by the entire thing," said another. (EXPRESS)

'I Shall Return'

Oxygen did not renew "The World According to Paris" for a second season, according to New York Magazine's Vulture blog. The show's first episode, in June, lured barely 400,000 viewers, and it was all downhill from there. "I wanted the show to be as real as possible," Hilton told Usmagazine.com at the series' launch party in May. "There's a lot of things in the show that I'm like, 'Oh my God, I cannot believe I'm going to allow this on television.'" (EXPRESS)

Weekend Track Work

From Friday, September 2nd through Monday, September 5th: Buses replace trains on the Orange Line between West Falls Church and East Falls Church. Work begins at 8 p.m on Friday. Buses also replace trains on the Blue Line between King Street and Van Dorn Street. Work begins at 10 p.m on Friday.

Temporarily closing stations and suspending train service on the Orange Line is necessary while Metro replaces rail and ties and installs switches for the Dulles extension. The Blue Line closure is needed to install NTSB-recommended switches. For information on free shuttle bus service, parking and alternate routes, please visit MetroForward.com or call 202-637-7000. Track work projects like this are part of Metro's commitment to building a better ride for you.
